Neal & Wright LLC is a small firm dedicated to helping clients who wish to grow their families through adoption, to create estate plans to protect the needs of their loved ones, and to establish and grow their small businesses. We provide a range of legal services in the adoption, estate planning, and transactional business arenas.

Our motto is “Your Family... Your Business... Your Firm!” This statement is not only intended to convey our commitment to assist our clients with their family- and business-related legal needs but also to express our firm philosophy. We are in all senses of the term a “family firm,” as we work together in our personal life to raise our daughter and in our work life to help other families realize their family-growth and small business dreams and goals.

Who We Are:

Sherry V. Neal is wife to Daniel S. Wright and mother of Latha Lois Wright and considers these her primary roles in life. She spends her professional time as a private attorney in Atlanta, Georgia, where she is the managing member of Neal & Wright LLC. Experienced in both the private and non-profit legal sectors, Sherry specializes in assisting families who want to grow through adoption. Sherry focuses her practice on relative, stepparent, second parent, and other domestic adoption matters and is a frequent speaker on issues related to adoption and pro bono service. Sherry also provides legal services in the area of estate planning, focusing on special needs trusts, and as a guardian ad litem. Through these practice areas, Sherry’s goal is to assist her clients with creating families and protecting the rights of family members, particularly those with special needs.

Sherry graduated summa cum laude from Wesleyan College, where she played soccer and sang in the Washboard Band. She graduated cum laude from the University of Georgia School of Law, where she was a member of the Women Law Students Association and the Georgia Law Review.

Outside of the legal arena, Sherry is an active member of the Peachtree-Atlanta Kiwanis Club and a professional time and space management consultant. Through her work as a consultant, Sherry enjoys helping clients declutter and regain a sense of joy in their surroundings. In addition, Sherry occasionally serves as Adjunct Professor of Business Law at Wesleyan College and enjoys staying connected with the next generation of “Wesleyannes.”

Dan began his career working at a small Atlanta-based law firm, focusing on commercial litigation, insurance law, estate planning, and general transactional matters. Seeking to diversify his practice and delve into more complex transactional matters, Dan subsequently moved to a larger firm and practiced law primarily in the field of commercial real estate, including acquisitions and dispositions of variable commercial property (e.g., shopping centers, office buildings, hotels and warehouses) most often on the developer side of the transaction, and leasing. Dan also worked on general corporate transactional issues, including corporate formation, governance, franchise, and other general transactional matters. While focusing on transactional matters, Dan leveraged his knowledge in litigation to provide litigation management services to the firm’s clients and maintained his estate planning practice during this time.

Observing Sherry’s success in solo practice, Dan decided to join Sherry to found Neal & Wright LLC on February 1, 2007. Drawing from his broad-based experience, Dan offers general business legal services, including real estate, corporate, and various other business law services, and estate planning.

Dan graduated cum laude from the School of Law at the University of Georgia in 1999. During his time in law school, Dan was on the Georgia Law Review and active in student government. Dan also interned in the summer of 1998 for U.S.

Magistrate Judge Gerrilyn G. Brill, U.S. District Court, Northern District of Georgia. Dan graduated from Trinity University, located in San Antonio, Texas, in 1996 with a B.A. in Economics.
